

NETFLIX DASHBOARD INSIGHTS

1. Netflix Content Is Dominated by Movies

The dashboard shows that Movies account for approximately 69.7% of total content, while TV Shows contribute about 30.3%. This indicates that Netflix's library is heavily focused on movie content, suggesting stronger investment in film acquisition and production compared to episodic television content.

2. Drama and International Genres Are the Most Popular

Genres such as: Dramas, International Movies, Documentaries and Stand-Up Comedy appear most frequently on the platform. This suggests that Netflix prioritizes: globally appealing content, diverse storytelling and international audience engagement. The strong presence of international genres reflects Netflix's strategy of expanding its global reach.

3. The United States Produces the Highest Amount of Netflix Content

The United States leads content production with approximately 2.8K titles, significantly outperforming other countries such as: India, United Kingdom and Japan. This indicates that the U.S. remains Netflix's primary content market and production hub. India also contributes a substantial amount of content, highlighting Netflix's growing investment in Asian and emerging entertainment markets.

4. Netflix Experienced Rapid Content Growth Between 2015 and 2018

The content release trend reveals strong growth from: 558 titles in 2015 to over 1,100 titles in 2018. This suggests an aggressive expansion phase where Netflix significantly increased its content acquisition and production efforts to attract and retain subscribers globally. After reaching a peak around 2018–2019, content releases gradually declined toward 2021. Possible reasons may include: shifts in content strategy, production delays, market saturation or global disruptions affecting entertainment production.

5. Mature Audience Content Dominates Netflix

The rating distribution shows that TV-MA is the most common content rating on the platform. This indicates that Netflix primarily targets mature audiences with content focused on: adult themes, crime, drama, thrillers and mature storytelling. TV-14 also represents a significant portion of the library, showing strong focus on teen and young adult audiences.

6. Netflix Maintains Strong Global Content Diversity

With approximately 749 countries/categories represented (based on the dataset structure), the platform demonstrates strong international diversity in content distribution. This reflects Netflix's strategy of offering localized and culturally diverse entertainment for global audiences.

The analysis reveals that Netflix has built a globally diverse entertainment platform dominated by movie content, international genres, and mature audience programming. The platform experienced rapid expansion between 2015 and 2018, driven largely by U.S.-produced content and increasing global market penetration.